Spaces Built Around Your Life

PERMIT CHECKLIST

Many home improvement projects require a permit. Permit requirements help ensure your structure is installed safely and complies with local city, county, and HOA guidelines. At Lifestyle Sheds & Spaces, we want to make the process as smooth and stress-free as possible.

Your Part

Select Your Shed Before Applying

Choose your building style, size, colors, options, and location on your property before starting the permit process. Your finalized quote or purchase information may be required by your local municipality.

List Yourself as the Contractor/Homeowner

Lifestyle Sheds & Spaces is a manufacturer and retailer of portable buildings, not a licensed general contractor. Because of this, permits must typically be pulled by the homeowner.

Specify That Your Building Is a PORTABLE Structure

When completing permit paperwork, identify your shed as a portable building unless local requirements specify otherwise.

Verify Local Requirements Before Purchase

Check with your city, county, neighborhood association, or HOA regarding:

- Setback requirements
- Maximum building sizes
- Height restrictions
- Anchoring requirements
- Placement limitations
- HOA approval guidelines

Understand Homeowner Responsibility

Once a permit is issued, the homeowner assumes responsibility for meeting local code and inspection requirements.

Our Part

Quality Construction You Can Trust

Lifestyle Sheds & Spaces builds structures designed for long-term durability, functionality, and everyday living.

Warranty Protection

Our buildings are backed by a Lifestyle Sheds warranty program designed to give you confidence and peace of mind long after delivery.

Permit Support Documentation

Upon request, we can provide available documentation that may assist during the permit approval process, including:

- Building specifications
- Dimensions and layouts
- Anchoring information
- Product details

Delivery Protection

Lifestyle Sheds maintains liability coverage during the delivery and setup process for added customer protection.

HOA-Friendly Design Options

We offer customization options designed to help many customers meet neighborhood and HOA requirements, including:

- Paint and siding color matching
- Residential-style trim packages
- Multiple siding styles
- Upgraded roof options
